Unable to Find Their Ideal Home. This Couple Obtained Exactly the Kind of Place They Wanted by Building It

The feeling come to me last spring—not very long ago, to be sure, but I am certain that the same thrill that possessed me that day will never cease despite the number of years which will roll by. The stories printed in The Sun of the search for the right type of house in the right location were greatly enjoyed because I had experienced the same trials before I finally located. You see, I lived all my life in New England—in Massachusetts, to be exact. I lived with that architecture which folks all over the country are now imitating—that,

The City Man who gained a Country Home and lost nothing

• • • took a seven-room apartment at Kew Gardens.

There were all forms of country pleasures at his very door. With the extra daylight saving hour to devote to them.

His apartment covered an entire separate wing the full privacy of a country house.

Its living, sleeping and servants' quarters were entirely shut off from each other yet compact and on one floor.

It had large, all outside rooms; 3 tiled baths; all night hall and elevator service; every high-class feature; the finest of construction and finish; select, desirable neighbors.

It was in a beautiful fourstory building, surrounded by fine old trees and parked grounds; his children played around healthy, protected, and contented.

It was 16 minutes from the heart of Manhattan pleasant, uncrowded travel.
